ABSTRACT

This article discusses the flow of history by Karl Marx about Historical Materialism. The discussion is directed at the history of the division of labor, division of class society and historical interpretation from the point of view of the economic approach. It is said that the pace of economic development is determined by the awareness of their social circumstances. The membership in a social class greatly determines the ideals of man in his position in the social class. This type of research is library research, which is research that originates in the study of literature, by examining existing books to seek further explanation of the problems to be examined.
